

Source Of Income

The source of income is important in determining if the income may be excluded under section 933 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Example Of Source Of Income Rules

Item of Income	Factor Determining Source
Salaries and other compensation	Where the service is performed
Interest	Residence of the payer
Dividends	Location of payer
Rents	Location of property
Royalties:
Natural resources	Location of property
Patents, copyrights, etc.	Where the property is used
Sale of real property	Location of property
Sale of stock or other nondepreciable personal property	Residence of the seller. The gain of a U.S. citizen outside the United States is U.S. Source unless a foreign income tax of at least 10% is actually paid to a foreign country. However, this 10% tax payment requirement does not apply to a person who is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico for the entire tax year.

Deductions

It is important to remember that deductions which apply to your exempt Puerto Rican income are not deductible on your Federal income tax return. For example, if you incurred employee business expenses of $1,250 on wages of $18,500 that are exempt from tax on your Federal return, the employee business expenses are not deductible on the Federal return.

Deductions for personal exemptions are allowed in full and need not be allocated.

Deductions that do not specifically apply to a particular income item must be allocated between your gross income subject to U.S. tax and your total gross income from all other sources. Examples of deductions that do not definitely apply to a particular type of income are alimony payments and certain itemized deductions (such as medical expenses, charitable contributions, and real estate taxes and mortgage interest on your personal residence). To find the part of the deduction that is allowable, you must apportion those items that do not apply to any specific type of income based on the ratio that your gross income subject to Federal tax bears to gross income from all sources.

EXAMPLE: You and your spouse, both under 65, are U.S. citizens and bona fide residents of Puerto Rico for the entire year. You file a joint return. During 2001 you earned $15,000 from Puerto Rican sources and your spouse earned $25,000 from the U.S. Government. You have $16,000 of itemized deductions that do not apply to any specific type of income. These are medical expenses (doctor's fees) $4,000, real estate taxes $5,000, home mortgage interest from a financial institution of $6,000, and charitable deductions of $1,000 (cash contributions).

You apportion deductions for your Federal tax return as follows: multiply the deduction to be allocated by a fraction. The numerator of the fraction is your gross income subject to Federal tax and the denominator is your total gross income from all sources (including exempt Puerto Rican income).

FORMULA:
$$\frac{\text{gross income subject to Federal tax}}{\text{gross income from all sources}} \times \text{deduction} = \text{allowable portion of deduction}$$

SCHEDULE A - Itemized Deductions should be modified as shown in the sample below:

Medical Expenses (doctor's fees)
 $\frac{$25,000}{$40,000} \times $4,000 = $2,500$ (Enter on line 1 of Schedule A.)

Real Estate Taxes
 $\frac{$25,000}{$40,000} \times $5,000 = $3,125$ (Enter on line 6 of Schedule A.)

Home Mortgage Interest Paid to Financial Institutions
 $\frac{$25,000}{$40,000} \times $6,000 = $3,750$ (Enter on line 10 of Schedule A.)

Charitable deduction (cash contributions)
 $\frac{$25,000}{$40,000} \times $1,000 = \625 (Enter on line 15 of Schedule A.)

NOTE: Enter on Schedule A only the allowable portion of each deduction. Deductions directly allocable to the income subject to Federal tax (such as employee business expenses and other miscellaneous deductions) need not be allocated.

Taxpayers Who Do Not Itemize Deductions

Standard Deduction

The standard deduction and the additional standard deduction for taxpayers who are blind or age 65 or over are deductions that do not apply to any particular type of income. If you do not itemize, they must be apportioned by the ratio that gross income subject to Federal tax bears to gross income from all sources. This adjustment must be made before you enter your standard deduction on line 36 of Form 1040 or line 22 of Form 1040A.

Use the following worksheet to apportion the standard deduction.

Write the following above line 36 Form 1040 or line 22 of Form 1040A: "Standard Deduction modified due to exempt income under section 933."

Credits

If you have income from P.R. sources not taxable on the Federal tax return, you must reduce your foreign taxes paid or accrued by the taxes allocable to exempt income. To find the amount allocable to the exempt income, multiply the taxes paid or accrued to Puerto Rico by a fraction. The numerator of the fraction is the exempt income (under IRC 933) from P.R. sources less deductible expenses allocable to that income. The denominator is the total amount of income subject to P.R. tax less deductible expenses allocable to that income.

Income from P.R. sources not subject to Federal tax less deductible expenses allocable to that income

FORMULA: $\frac{\text{Income from P.R. sources not subject to Federal tax less deductible expenses allocable to that income}}{\text{Total income subject to Puerto Rico tax less deductible expenses allocable to that income}} \times \text{Tax paid or accrued to Puerto Rico} = \text{Reduction in Foreign taxes}$

EXAMPLE: John and Mary are bona fide residents of Puerto Rico filing jointly. John works for the Federal Government and received salary of $25,000 during 2001 and had employee business expenses allocable to that income of $500. Mary works for private industry and received salary of $15,000 and had employee business expenses of $300 allocable to that income. Total taxes paid to Puerto Rico: $5,000.

$\frac{$14,700}{$39,200} \times $5,000 = $1,875 = \text{taxes allocable to excluded income. (Enter on Form 1116 Part III, line 12 "Reduction in Foreign taxes".)}$
